Decisive Naval Battle Believed Raging In Pacific

Showdown Battle Believed Raging In Pacific Area

War's Biggest Sea Battle Is Believed In Progress In Mariana Sector

TOKYO ASSERTS FLEETS IN ACTION

By RICHARD V. HALLER
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

PEARL HARBOR, June 21.—A gigantic naval engagement between the Japanese Imperial fleet and the United States Pacific fleet already may be under way today in the vast reaches of the western Pacific between the Mariana Islands and the Philippines.

(The Jap Domei agency reported a fierce naval battle between units of the United States and Japanese fleets already raging in the waters near the Marianas. The Japanese report was recorded by Reuters news agency.)

May Be Showdown

If action already has been joined between the two armadas it may prove to be the final showdown battle which Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and every fighting admiral, officer and man in the fleet has been hoping for ever since the Marshall Islands were invaded early this year.

Since Admiral Nimitz made his momentous disclosure late yesterday that the Jap armada, possibly the entire Imperial fleet, had been sighted in waters between the Philippines and Marianas, there has been no further official word whether the Japs have finally accepted a decisive naval action. If the two armadas already are locked in combat it may become the war's biggest sea battle, a titanic action which might prove decisive in the Pacific war which is reaching closer and closer to Tokyo itself and the Jap homeland.

PA NEWC Observes

Today is officially the first day of summer and also the "longest day" of the year.

Resurfacing of the Leesburg-Grove City highway is in progress, according to reports from Leesburg.

Smoke was curling from many chimneys of residences around the city yesterday as fires were lighted in heaters, due to the unseasonably cool day that was experienced.

Work is in progress at several school yards around the city, preparatory to placing blacktop on some of the school yards. Elimination of a lot of mud that has to be contended with during much of the school term is the aim.

Evenings downtown can see buzzing groups of people standing at one of the many windows displaying pictures of our men and women in the United States Service—some who have already given their lives to preserve our Independence—and others who are on the fields now—giving their all—with us backing the attack in our FIFTH WAR BOND DRIVE.

Believe Hitler Faces Real Dilemma Now In Defending France

By MAJOR PAUL C. RABORG
(Written Especially for U.S.)

NEW YORK, June 21.—The Cherbourg peninsula, its Nazi garrison, and in fact the entire bridgehead on the Normandy coast adjoining the bay of the Seine, has been written off the books of the German general staff as "expended in action."

One of the questions uppermost in the minds of most observers is what will Hitler and his war lords do next in the defense of the west coast of Europe and, in particular, France? That question can only be intelligently answered by transposing

Secretary Of Navy Says Jap Fleet Sighted Several Times Recently

By JOSEPH A. BOES
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal declared today there is some indication that the Pacific fleet has succeeded "in catching up" with the Japanese fleet between 500 and 800 miles west of Saipan.

At a news conference the secretary revealed the Japanese fleet has been sighted at various times during the last few days, milling around from 500 to 800 miles to the westward of Saipan Island.

"Admiral Nimitz' fleet is under strict radio silence," Forrestal said. (Continued on Page Two)

State Failing To Meet Quotas For Paper Salvage

HARRISBURG, June 21.—Pennsylvanians were failing today to meet waste paper collection goals despite the critical wartime shortage of paper, according to the state defense council's salvage committee.

Warren R. Roberts, committee chairman, pointed out that the 10 pound per capita quota fixed each month for the state was one and a half pounds short during May.

Approximately 44,000 tons of waste paper were collected in May compared with 22,133 tons in January, Roberts added.

Washington Roundup

(International News Service)

In Washington today, a national survey of Republican delegations shows that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York will be nominated for the presidency on the first ballot at the Chicago GOP convention next week. Dewey already has a minimum total of 700 votes in the convention. Only 530 are required. Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio is a poor second in the poll, with 190 votes.

Congress is driving hard for a five weeks' recess beginning Friday night so its members can attend the political conventions. A bill extending the price control act for one year, together with huge appropriation measures are being pushed to final enactment.

Corn-belt senators, meanwhile, are protesting WPB's decision to allow distillers a "holiday"—the month of August—to produce beverage alcohol, asserting that it poses the issues of "food versus liquor."

On the other side of Capitol Hill, Rep. Flannagan (D) Va., chairman of a house committee created to probe marketing, transportation and distribution of farm products, says the group will save "literally millions of dollars annually" for the farmer and the food consuming public. He predicts the investigation will take nearly two years.

Naval experts say an American victory in the sea battle reported by Tokyo to be raging off the Philippines would seriously disrupt Japan's supply lines while military analysts point out that the fall of Cherbourg, which now appears imminent, will provide the allies with a first class seaport to be used in furthering the European invasion.

Over Thousand Heavy Bombers Smash At Nazis

Berlin And Other Parts Of Germany Targets Of Huge Daylight Raid

ROBOT BOMB BASES ARE AGAIN BLASTED

By JOSEPH THOMAS
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, June 21.—A huge force of more than 1,000 American heavy bombers carried out a devastating raid against key targets within Berlin and the German capital's outskirts today, causing enemy propagandists to term it a terrific "terror attack."

As the Eighth U. S. Air Force Fortresses and Liberators swept under strong fighter plane escort deep into the heart of the Reich, other Allied warplanes continued to bomb bases in northern France from which the Nazis have been launching robot bomb attacks against southern England.

Train-labeled Lightnings, deadly Thunderbolts and Mustang fighters escorted the four-motored bombers which poured heavy weights of explosives upon the German capital and Basdorf, in the outskirts of Berlin.

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HQ, New Guinea, June 21.—(INS)—American tanks and infantry were busy today mopping up enemy pockets of resistance west of Sorido airdrome after completing capture of all three enemy airfields on Biak Island, Dutch New Guinea.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's regular communiqué revealed that the Yank invasion forces had occupied Borokoe and Sorido airstrips in a swift developing attack yesterday at 11 a. m. The Mokmer airdrome previously had fallen to the U. S. amphibious troops.

German Leader Hurls Elements Of Seven Divisions Against Allied Advance

NAZI AIRCRAFT CARRIER BOMBED

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

ROME, June 21.—Field Marshal Albert Kesselring hurled elements of seven German divisions against the Fifth army today but the Allied armies in Italy continued to move steadily toward the Florence-Rimini line after capturing the industrial city of Perugia.

At the same time Allied fighter-bombers were revealed to have attacked a German aircraft carrier in the Harbor of Genoa to the north of the steadily-advancing Allies.

The seven Nazi division units made their appearance on the eastern sector of the front. Mark W. Clark's army front.

Taking advantage of favorable terrain features, the enemy employed anti-tank guns and self-propelled artillery while stubbornly defending roadblocks to impose delays on the steadily-advancing Allies.

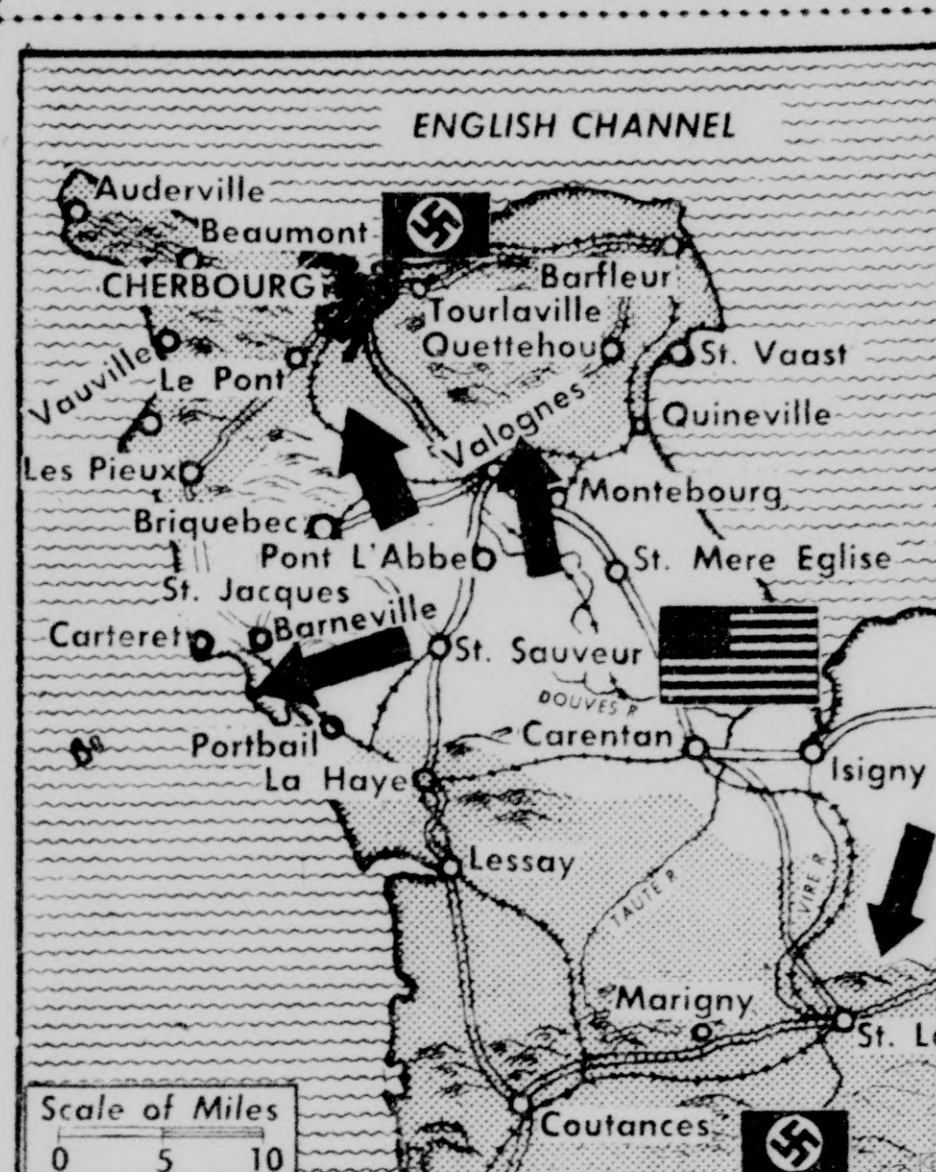

The Nazis also resorted to "hit and run" tactics to stem the northward drive.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—(INS)—The tempo of war bond sales in Pennsylvania increased for the third straight day in the fifth war loan campaign.

Bond Sales In County Show $784,995 Today

Report Includes Only Sales To Individuals—Ellwood Sets Pace

With two of the seven Lawrence County districts unreported today at noon in the fifth war loan bond headquarters in the Greater New Castle association, the total sales to individuals amounted to $784,995.50. This includes only sales to individuals, and no corporate sales. These will be announced on June 26. The total "E" bond sales is $485,224.

Broken down into districts, the totals are as follows: New Castle, $383,187.25; Ellwood City, $348,845.75; Wampum, $9,125; Bessemer, $693.75; and New Wilmington, $43,143.75.

From the results shown above, it can be seen that Ellwood City is leading the field by a wide margin, not alone in gross totals for "E" bond sales, but for per capita average sales. Ellwood City's per capita sales of "E" bonds today is approximately $1.10.

FINAL ASSAULT ON CITY NEARING

WITH U. S. FORCES IN NORMANDY PENINSULA, June 21.—American troops, snapping the trap on doomed Cherbourg, have seized an arc of high ground around the city and have begun fighting through the bristling defenses guarding the important Normandy port.

The striking force sweeping toward Cherbourg from the west and east have fought a hard fight against marshalled machine guns and mortars while American artillery pounded the German positions.

Meanwhile, French civilians and paratroopers, still returning from the German lines, reported that the Nazis are frantically withdrawing every possible soldier from the top of the peninsula into festering Cherbourg.

Several Nazi counter-thrusts were driven off during yesterday afternoon and last night after blistering fire from small arms, mortar and artillery had carried the Americans to the approaches of Mt. Durie, one of Cherbourg's bastions.

REPEAT DEMAND FOR SURRENDER

British Radio Calls On Nazi Garrison And Navy At Cherbourg To Surrender

NEW YORK, June 21 (INS)—The British radio in a dawn broadcast to "men of the German navy in Cherbourg" today repeated an earlier warning to surrender, which was issued yesterday to German troops.

Text of the warning to the German navy units, spoken in German by a high officer of the Royal Navy, was reported by U. S. government monitors.

"Men of the German navy in Cherbourg," it said in part: "The naval commander of Normandy and his staff must feel bitter considering the hopelessness of their situation. As the garrison of a naval harbor you faced an impossible task, a superhuman task for the entire navy. Enough men, enough work, but not enough operational space. Despite the impossible task you did your duty and your achievement is commendable. But now as you must realize you, men of the German navy in Cherbourg as well as your comrades in the army, are hopelessly cut off."

of powerful artillery and aircraft concentrations. Street fighting developed in which the Finnish garrison was soundly defeated.

Capture of Viipuri, lying 125 miles east of the Finnish capital of Helsinki, came on the eve of the third anniversary of German's drive into Russia. It represented a total advance of some 55 miles through Karelian forest and swamp since Marshal Leonid A. Gouorov's army went over to the offensive 10 days earlier.

Many prisoners and much material—including guns, vehicles and ammunition—fell into Russian hands. Soviet dive-bombers and fighter-planes slashed at retreating Finnish forces, destroying 80 motor vehicles, four ammunition dumps and three railroad trains.

Other aircraft attached to the Russian battle fleet blasted enemy ships in Viipuri bay, sinking at least six surface craft and as many more barges. The vessels sunk included three supply ships, a patrol cutter and two tugs. Two other supply craft and "several other vessels" were damaged.

"On other fronts there are no changes," the official Russian communiqué declared.

not knowing whether or not the present Normandy bridgehead is the main base of invasion, or if several other similar bases will be established. Therefore, he must keep large mobile forces in reserve at a central point back of the western coast which can oppose any new allied invasion.

The German high command knows that the present beachhead and the Cherbourg peninsula are now irrevocably in the hands of allied troops.

He is fully aware further that the Cherbourg peninsula in itself is of sufficient size to be the base of operations and supply the necessary airfields—for any offensive against western Europe that General Eisenhower desires.

Easy Route To Paris

The Nazi high command realizes that, if our present invasion forces take Le Havre and the mouth of the Seine, the valley of the Seine is almost the easiest route of approach to Paris. And regardless of whether Vichy has been the temporary seat of the French government, Paris is and always has been the center, the heart and the brain of continental France.

The German high command knows that, if the allied armies could assault and seize the present Normandy beachhead, such an operation can be repeated at the orders of General Eisenhower at any place on the west coast of Europe which faces on the English channel between southern Holland and Brest.

From a strategic point of view, it would seem that Hitler's high command must take the following defense steps: he must throw sufficient strength into the present battle to stop further progress on the part of allied troops now occupying the Normandy bridgehead. But he cannot commit to the Normandy fight so many German troops that he is unable to meet effectively any future assault or assaults at other locations.

The German high command must also at all costs hold Le Havre, and the mouth and the valley of the Seine river.

All in all, the German high command is faced with conditions of defense which are and will be impossible for him to meet successfully.

In the Greater New Castle association office the staff is receiving reports from various groups almost hourly so that the grand total as this article is read will be slightly higher than shown above. The county is still far back of what its daily average of sales should be. There is need for some good old-fashioned shoe leather hustling if Lawrence county is to maintain its proud record of never failing in a war bond campaign.

Eighth and Ninth airforces, attacked in very great strength targets in Berlin and Basdorf on the outskirts of Berlin," the official communiqué said.

Hammer Robot Bases

Meanwhile, the relentless attacks against the robot-bomb launching bases continued. Sweeps were carried out against enemy installations in the Pas De Calais area of northern France, with large numbers of Allied machines going across the Channel virtually every half-hour.

Stories of remarkable success being achieved by Allied fighters against the robot bombs continue to pile up, while the balloon barrage system also is known to be taking a fair toll of the flying bombs.

Heavy air duels were reported fought between German fighters and Allied planes over the northern Reich.

The German transoceanic agency reported that Berliners saw violent air battles over the Nazi capital as German fighters engaged the bombers. Many American airplanes, it was asserted, were seen to bail out of their craft. Both high explosives and incendiaries were dropped Transoceanic said.

Attack On Berlin

"The morning attack on Berlin was a terror raid directed exclusively against the civil population," the Nazi transmitter complained.

Observers along the Folkstone coast of England said that large formations of bombers and fighters headed out at different times for assaults on the continent.

The Germans at the same time carried on the robot plane offensive against southern England. The pilotless plane attacks reached an impressive scale during the past 12 hours, the seventh consecutive day that these missiles have been hurled across the channel, after a comparative lull yesterday.

A German radio also reported Allied bomber formations over Saxony and Laube and the Luxembourg transmitter said bombers had headed toward Warthegau.

More Robot Planes

Allied planes which went out from England streaked off in various directions. Formations headed for northern France. Fighters appeared headed for the Cap Gris-Nez area. Some bombers went off southwest of Boulogne in the direction of Le Touquet and Etaples.

A stream of robots came over England during the night at frequent intervals and the attacks continued in daylight today. It was believed yesterday's virtual inactivity may have been due to some extent to the pounding by Allied planes of robot launching bases in northern France and to the clear weather which helped fighter patrols. Last night and today, however, the skies were dull and cloudy.

"There is some indication that it may have succeeded in catching up with all or a part of the Japanese fleet yesterday, but there is no definite information as to this."

Admiral Ernest J. King, commander of the U. S. fleet, was present at the news conference and he confirmed that Forrestal's statement "covers the situation as accurately as possible."

"Admiral are you at all worried about the outcome of the present operations off Saipan?" a reporter asked King.

"No," the Navy's fighting chief replied. Forrestal reported that Navy seaplanes and submarines "have been most useful in reconnoitering the Japanese fleet."

in the Marianas just one week ago today, the Tokyo radio has been bellowing big losses one moment, denying them the next.

One fact is definite—they have lost 600 planes since the invasion of the Marianas was launched last week. Admiral Nimitz officially announced that fact.

And the Marines and Army Infantry have taken the entire southern portion of Saipan, including the strategic Aslito airfield, only 1,500 miles from Tokyo, from them.

Admiral Nimitz summoned war correspondents assigned to his Pacific fleet headquarters at Pearl Harbor to his conference room to discuss the momentous news that the Jap fleet had deployed in fighting formation east of the Philippines.

"We don't know the exact size of the enemy fleet in the Mariana-Philippines area but it is assumed they have everything there they could bring out," he said.

"We are prepared for it, looking for it and hoping for it."

"We put enough muscle into our Fifth fleet to cope with all the enemy can muster and to make the outcome of any decisive engagement favorable to us."

Purpose Explained

Speaking quietly and calmly, Admiral Nimitz declared that the purpose of our invasion of the Marianas was the same as that of the Marshall Islands invasion early in February—to establish bases with which to project our seapower westward.

"I don't know if there is anything else we can do to provoke the Japanese fleet into naval engagement."

"We expected tough fighting at Saipan and hoped the Japanese fleet would interfere. Accordingly we took great strength with us in the event of opportunity for fleet action."

Nimitz reported that the Jap fleet finally made its appearance in combat waters east of the Philippines because it felt it had sufficient information to launch carrier aircraft strikes at our naval task force covering and supporting the American troops on Saipan.

"The results was the several noon attack Sunday," Nimitz said. "Some 300 of their planes were destroyed. With previous losses they have lost 600 in this action to date."

"So far we have had no important combatant unit sunk. Some near misses have been scored on landing craft and tankers but all are still working. We are very lucky. Still, the situation prevailing as of Monday."

CHERBOURG FORT GOAL OF ATTACK

the city is not yet visible to our forces although they are a good deal less than four miles away at some points.

Behind these hills is what American officers call the "key to Cherbourg"—both militarily and morally. It is the Fort Du Roule, standing atop a sheer promontory known as the Montagne Du Roule which lies at the extreme southeastern edge of the city.

It commands all of Cherbourg—the port and docks, harbor installations and the fields that surround the city. The fire from its big guns can cover all the main roads leading into Cherbourg from the south.

Important Fortification

From time immemorial, Fort Du Roule has been an important fortification and the Germans have reinforced it with concrete machine-gun and artillery emplacements. So long as the Germans hold it, Cherbourg cannot be considered ours. On the other hand, once it falls, resistance elsewhere around the city may be expected to collapse.

As the Berlin radio has announced, extensive demolitions already have been carried out at Cherbourg. The main quay at the maritime railway station is believed intact. The Germans dumped railway cars into the water alongside one pier which will mean plenty of work for our salvage experts.

The westward end of Cherbourg's monster breakwater also has been partially destroyed.

The Montagne Du Roule at the southeastern end of Cherbourg was familiar to all tourists in previous days. Visitors were permitted to climb the hill but entrance to the fortress always has been prohibited.

Philippines. Also brought within range of Allied bombers is the formidable Japanese naval base at Palau, 500 miles east of the Philippines.

Heavy Jap Losses

Losses described officially as "heavy" were inflicted upon the Japanese defenders of the airfields. A veteran American officer of the Buna campaign said the Biak Japs were Nipponese elite troops, determined to fight to the death.

While the ground forces scored these latest victories, airmen of the Fifth Air Force dealt the enemy additional setbacks.

In a sweep over Manokwari, at the western end of New Guinea, attack bombers sank a Jap freighter, a coastal vessel and four barges. One plane was lost in the assault.

Other Havoc bombers raided the Numfor airfield, starting fires while medium bombers did likewise over the Cape Chater field on Timor.

Rabaul, Jap base on New Britain, again was rocked—this time by 80 tons of bombs from heavy, medium and light bombers which concentrated on airfield and supply installations. And other heavy bombers hit Truk in the Carolines with 39 tons of explosives, without meeting fighter or anti-aircraft interception.

ALLIED ARMIES IN ITALY MAKE NEW PROGRESS

were met in the vicinity of Castel Del Piano, which also was seized yesterday.

French elements in the central sector occupied a number of villages against bitter German opposition. Among the towns cleared of the enemy were Monticello, Segignano, Vico, Corsica, Bagni San Filippo, Palencia, Palozzetta, Pozzo Maggiore, Paganico and Campitella Dorcia.

The Eighth army column which occupied Perugia, important highway junction 83 miles above Rome was led by the 65th Lancers, a famous British cavalry regiment. Northwest of the city, the Britons occupied high ground, including Monte Maibe and San Marco.

Further to the west other Eighth army units were astride highway 71, after clearing the Germans from the towns of Chusi and Etonia.

Extremely Heavy Rains

Headquarters of Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson said that extremely heavy rain prevailed through the area where the Allies are advancing and restricted the movements of the Fifth and Eighth armies to the existing roadways.

Along the west coast, where the Fifth army is advancing in the direction of the Port of Pionibus, the situation was reported unchanged with the exception of "minor tactical gains."

On the Adriatic side of the peninsula the Eighth army continued its advance behind retreating German forces. Forward patrols reached the Menocchio river.

Road and rail bridges, motor transport, German-controlled communications points and other objectives north of the battle area were hammered by Allied planes which yesterday engaged in some 750 sorties.

Fighter-bombers hit at a German aircraft carrier in the Harbor of Genoa and against shipping along the west coast of Italy. Targets in Albania were assaulted.

Light bombers attacked shipping in the North Adriatic.

All participating aircraft returned to base.

The cost of 312 feature length motion pictures and some 500 short subjects produced by major Hollywood motion picture companies in 1943 was about $247,000,000.

Don't Cork Pore-Mouths With Cake Make-Up!

WARNS SCIENCE

WHICH IS YOUR SKIN?

BIG PORE OPENINGS: Hard little pellets of cake make-up clogging pore-openings may not merely help stretch and enlarge them... but even worse, interfere with normal functioning, gather dangerous germs, lead to ugly blemishes!

DRY SKIN: Watch out for dry skin. It looks years older, lacks the radiance of youth. If you have the slightest tendency to dryness or skin flakiness, be wary of cake make-up.

Lady Esther baby-texture powder gives that young, smooth, "flawless look"...without danger!

Skin specialists have told me their first warning to girls with skin trouble is "Stop using cake make-up". It exposes delicate skin to three serious risks... dryness, coarseness and blemishes. Needless risks, when you can achieve far more exciting loveliness... without danger.

Why Lady Esther "Glamorizes" your skin without danger

Made by the exclusive Twin Hurricane Process... of the finest and purest ingredients... Lady Esther Face Powder gives your skin an enchanting new radiance. Infinitely finer and softer than other powders... my powder spreads on your face not like powdery particles... but rather like a delicate flattering film, that hides little lines and blemishes, clings 4 long hours. Even in strong sunlight, your face never looks mask-like or chalky, but utterly natural... as fine, smooth and flawless as lovely baby skin.

These thrilling results I promise you are not just my own opinion. They are the actual words, the experiences of thousands of women... taken from actual letters! These women have seen the difference on their own skin. They know from experience that no other make-up is half so flattering... or stays on and stays fresh so long, as safe Lady Esther Powder!

What is your skin experience? Write me. My address is: 7171 W. 65th St., Chicago, Ill.

Japs Are Scared

Japan is being put through a gauntlet of propaganda. It is designed by the United States to give the Nips the jitters and it is succeeding in its mission.

A powerful American fleet suddenly deploys before a Japanese outpost close to the home islands and blasts it. Then a commanding officer—usually Admiral Nimitz or General MacArthur issues a statement about plans to plow through the Japanese straight to the home islands.

This is followed, periodically, by official announcement that Hitler will be taken care of first, just by way of compounding the Japanese confusion.

Reports from Normandy have told of Japanese fighting with the Nazis in defense of the coast. How many Japs were there is not revealed. It is known, but it is probable that the number was small and that they were observers trying to figure out a way to block invasion of the home islands through first-hand knowledge of how the Allies invade.

Some say but will never speak again and those that escaped probably were so badly mauled and confused by the suddenness and ferocity of the blow they have a hazy impression of what struck them and how. Presence of these Nips in Normandy is proof that Japan is greatly concerned about possible landings of Allied armies on the homeland.

Vacation Travel Ban

The Office of Defense Transportation has appealed to the public to refrain from making vacation plans requiring railroad or inter-city bus travel.

Aside from the possibility of canceled reservations because of increased military movements, the ODT points out that invasion preparations put a great burden on the country's transportation service, to which now must be added the task of getting war casualties from overseas to general hospitals in this country and later to special treatment hospitals. Additional transportation will be required for trips by military personnel to replacement centers and for furloughs.

It is not strange that this request is made by the government at this time. If anything, it is strange that it needs to be made at all. Since the nation's entry into the war, the American transportation system has been greatly overtaxed. With ingenuity and resourcefulness, railroads and bus lines have made the best of the emergency, but there are limits to their carrying capacity. By now the public is aware that transportation must be reserved for essential wartime business.

The appeal is being made at a time when many persons feel the need of escape from routine to recondition themselves for work. Escape, however, is not dependent on going unusual distances. Any community has accessible changes of scene nearby. Vacations that involve extensive travel usually are not restful, anyhow. To enjoy a vacation near home is practical, economical and desirable from the viewpoint of novelty. Relaxation—the essence of a vacation—is available in any number of ways. To detour from routine, to get out of a rut, this really is getting somewhere.

Besides, no real American wants to go where he will be out of touch with events that are determining his destiny.

Reminder Of 1912

Thirty-four years ago Theodore Roosevelt returned after over a year's absence from the country to find the handling of power by his party not to his liking. During his presidency he had charted a course that was not being followed. He set about trying to influence Republican voters to demand a return to progressive principles. After a year and a half of political preaching he declared himself a candidate for the G.O.P. nomination; was beaten in the convention, set up the Bull Moose party, and by splitting the Republican vote brought about the election of Woodrow Wilson.

So far as developed, the series of articles Wendell Willkie is now publishing is a reminder of the 1912 situation.

Only in a limited sense is Mr. Willkie a follower in T.R.'s footsteps. But he has some of Teddy's forthrightness. He opposes pussyfooting on important issues for vote-getting purposes. He has definite ideas about what the G.O.P. should stand for, and to many political sharps they are unacceptable. He is giving advice some of which will not sit well on the stomachs of party managers. And a lot of voters are listening. They like plain talk.

It is not the intention here to suggest that Mr. Willkie, who was beaten four years ago in a country-wide fight and recently overwhelmingly defeated in the Wisconsin primary, is going to set himself up as an independent candidate if Chicago won't listen to him. He has not the militant following that T.R. had.

But the question what course he will pursue if his party rejects his advice, repudiates his opinions as to what the voters want and adopts a platform of the usual catch-all type must be troubling the more astute of the Republican leaders. Willkie is their problem child. How will he behave if they undertake to spank him and put him to bed? Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

A 'First' For The 'Fourth'

"Put victory first on the Fourth!"
The National Safety Council thus appealed today to every citizen to enlist in a nationwide campaign to reduce the huge annual Fourth of July holiday toll.

One hundred and thirty other national organizations have joined with the council in a united effort to prevent an avalanche of holiday accidents that would waste manpower, material and time needed to back up America's fighting men in the crucial invasion period.

The campaign is designed to help officials, traffic officers and safety leaders in their efforts to curb the annual jamboree of carelessness which marks the Fourth of July holiday period.

"Gas or no gas," said Col. John Stillwell, president of the council, "traffic deaths are going up throughout the country, and we may as well face the fact that unless drivers and pedestrians use more care, the Fourth of July accident toll will skyrocket."

Holiday traffic will be heavy, beyond a doubt. Thousands of war-time factories will be running full blast, and hundreds of thousands of war workers will be going to and from their jobs. To this essential traffic must be added the holiday travel which, while lighter than in prewar days, perhaps, still will present an added public hazard.

"The least we can do on the home front to help our boys on the battlefield is to prevent accidents that delay victory and increase the battle toll."

A wood only half the weight of the steel. We are told that "maru," applied lightest known type is washed upon to Japanese ships is the name of a South Pacific beach. Sounds like legendary duty living beneath the name of the pre-convention political sea. Maru has been calling them lumber, cast adrift.—Detroit News, home—Chicago State Journal.

Washington Calling

By MARQUIS CHILDS

Armageddon Here

WASHINGTON, June 21—This is it. Armageddon has arrived only five years late and as time is measured geologically that is only the flicker of an eyelash.

Remember back to the start of the war, that September day in 1939 when the lights went out all over Europe. Then we expected it. We who had been brought up on H. G. Wells' fantasies of the earth-shaking bombers and the atomic death ray.

It didn't happen and because it didn't happen we developed a curious complacency. The phrase "phony war" came into use.

Four years ago the Nazis unleashed their blitz on France and the low countries. It was appalling. We were sunk in black despair.

Yet, still the world, or a part of it, survived. And human beings have a curious and stubborn refusal to see the danger just around the corner. We told ourselves that it wasn't to be nearly as bad as we had thought.

Prophecies Possible

But now with the pilotless plane with the super-bomber that can fly through storms as far as from Los Angeles to Kansas City to reach a target, with vastly improved flame throwers and phosphorus bombs with the work of thousands of scientists coining to fruition, we are forced to believe that the wildest prophecies of doom are possible. The aerial blitz on England in 1940 and '41 was only a sample, the mass raids on Germany but a preface of destruction.

For certainly the end is not in sight. As one of our pioneer experts in new weapons said to me the other day:

"The radio-directed missile is only in the beginning stages. In ten years it will be possible to release substantial tonnages of high explosives accurately in a distant target by radio direction."

In other words, what the Germans are sending over England today are pretty crude little toys, just as the German bombers of 1940 were crude in comparison to the B-29. It's a safe guess that in a dozen laboratories, perhaps in as many experimental plants, something much more spectacular is on the way.

Working On Deadlier Weapons
It is no secret that the Germans are working on weapons to be powered by atomic energy—weapons with an explosive force far greater than results from the mere mixture of a few chemicals. German propaganda broadcasts have hinted at the imminent use of some such weapon.

The Nazis killed off or forced into exile part of their scientific brain trust, but good scientific brains working 14 and 16 hours a day. They might get it before this war ends.

Sometimes you can't help but feel a sort of despair for the human race itself; the black pessimism that old Mark Twain gave vent to in his last years. On one side, man is so heroic and so noble and on the other side, so base and so cruel.

Sometimes you feel that in man's inner nature there is a deep contradiction, almost a perverse suicidal impulse. The rats of Norway, responding to some unaccountable impulse, at certain periods swam in huge numbers on into the sea and to their death. Nature has not guaranteed any species against destruction.

The choice would seem to be ours. The pin point of time in which we stand could mark the great divide. If it—the instinct of self-preservation asserts itself, then there will be a union which will check the spread of wars and perhaps eventually prevent them. That is the only way to prevent destruction of the society that man has built so painfully through the centuries.

Woodrow Wilson, it now seems to us, asked for too much at the start. President Roosevelt, in his desire to avoid that mistake, may be asking too little. He seems to have failed to unite men necessarily with the idealistic impulse which must be a powerful force in any such union.

Already this political year you can see the Roosevelt-Hull plan moving into controversy. But with the dull thumping roar of the pilotless planes over the English coast, we should each and every one of us solemnly remember what is at stake.

ARRANGEMENT OF WEDDING PARTY AT ALTAR

"At a formal church wedding with four bridesmaids and four ushers, what is the proper arrangement at the altar? That is, who stands where, etc. etc."—G. T.

Answer: When the bridal party reaches the altar steps, the ushers separate. Half go to the right and half to the left. The bridesmaids do likewise, passing in front of the ushers. Thus, in a group of 12, three ushers are placed behind three bridesmaids at the right and left of the chancel rails. The flower girls usually stand one on each side near the head of the aisle that they may be ready to lead the recessional. If the bride prefers, she may place one at the left and a little behind the maid-of-honor and one at the right a little behind the best man.

The ring bearer of any should stand to the right of the best man; that there may be no delay in finding the ring.

The bridegroom, best man and clergyman have advanced to the rail at the first note of the wedding march. The bridegroom comes to meet his bride, who takes her hand from her father's arm, transfers her bouquet from her right to her left hand, and gives her right hand to the bridegroom who puts it through his left arm and escorts her to the altar.

As they face the clergyman at the altar, the bride should stand to the left of the groom, the best man to his right, the maid-of-honor to the bride's left.

The World and the Mud Puddles

OUR WORST ENEMY

The most dangerous attacks upon individual freedom today, ironically and paradoxically, are emanating, not from Germany or Japan, but from bureaucratic groups within the United States and Great Britain—the two citadels of human liberty!

A military victory over the Axis is virtually certain, though it will cost us dearly before it is won. That threat to individual freedom—the Axis threat—we can smash by sheer weight of bombs, supremacy of arms and the indomitable courage of our fighting men.

But the battle for freedom will have been only half-won when Germany and Japan have been beaten into surrender. When our external enemies have been defeated, we will still face a desperate fight against our foes within—a fight against the creeping paralysis of a sordid, materialistic, power-seeking bureaucracy which, if it goes unchecked, will destroy individual freedom here just as sure as Hitler destroyed it in Nazi Germany.

The implacable enemy of individual freedom is POWER—excess of power, concentrated in a few hands. It is an evil in business and industry, just as it is an evil in government, except that history has demonstrated that the people will not long tolerate insolent power in the hands of business tycoons. Eventually, public will stamp out business arrogance and labor arrogance. But with government, the problem is far more dangerous, for the power of the state, if it is not quickly curbed, grows on power—and develops into despotism and dictatorship.

That is the grave problem which this Nation, and Britain as well, must cope with if human liberty, the hope of mankind, is to endure. For while we are confident that we will win the military decision over Hitler and Tojo, there is no denial that the totalitarian virus has infected our own country.

The Executive Department and the administrative bureaus and commissions in Washington have boldly usurped the law-making power of Congress, on such a broad scale that more than fifty thousand bureaucratic orders and directives have been handed down in the past four years, all given the full force and effect of law.

In the Montgomery Ward seizure case, which probably shocked the American people more than any other high-handed act of government in our generation, there was another object lesson of how our bureaucratic arrogance can circumvent the law with the connivance of a pliant Attorney General, willing to interpret the law to suit the purpose of the moment.

When a private business has no protection against unlawful search and seizure, no thoughtful citizen can doubt that we have drifted to the brink of the precipice. For of the non-war plant of Montgomery Ward & Company can be seized under order of the President simply because of a Labor dispute in which the President sided with the union as against the company, then any business or farm or home in the Nation can be taken over, if the President or some bureau or commission in Washington wills it.

The Parent Problem

SIMPLE PLAYTHINGS PLEASE TOT

The child, as soon as he can toddle, must be given something to do. The time you might as well command the winds to cease and the rolling sea to have a glassy surface, as to tell the little child to be still. If you don't believe this, sit down with a pad and pencil and note the movements and activities of a normal two-year-old.

If this child has not been entertained, he will be bored. He has been given proper things to play with and let alone, you will be surprised at what you observe.

Playthings For Tot
A child of two or three has blocks, spoons, clothespins and other simple objects which he can draw by short or long cords, something on wheels to drag around, and other things he can handle.

He can handle a box of dominoes or small blocks which he can fit into a container, a pot or pan in which he can carry little things from place to place. He has free access to a variety of kitchenware—pots, pans, covers, spoons, ladles, rolling pin, egg beater and the like. He has a substantial box or step or chair on which he can stand beside the kitchen sink and wash his hands from a small vessel to a larger one. Perhaps he has a funnel.

When the groceries arrive, the canned goods and cereal packets allow him to handle them and carry them from place to place. There seems to be no end to the toddler's joy when he thinks he is helping.

Children Like Wagons
With his cart or box of dominoes he can have small things from the kitchen through the dining room and living room back and forth, busying himself at this for hours. When he gets a little older he can cut with snub-nosed scissors, draw and color with kindergarten crayons, and paste.

Out-of-door he likes to have some sand, some tools for working in, some water and some pails. There, too, he likes to have some toys on wheels in which to haul things around.

When we let the child alone he finds many things all around him, in discarded empty containers, and many other things usually thrown away. Often what to us adults seems most worthless, to the little child is a precious toy.

A graded list of toys and tools may be had by writing me at 235 East 45th Street, New York, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Hope To Neutralize Effort To Split China
Philippine Airfields May Be Jap Headache
O.P.A. Strongly Opposes Chandler Amendment

By HELEN ESSARY
(Central Press Columnist)

WASHINGTON, June 21—Allied forces in the Pacific and Far East now are in a cing against time to get into a position that could neutralize Japan's latest drives to split fighting China and force a collapse of that gallant Asiatic power. The monsoon season is on in Burma and it will prevent any major action in that area by either the Allies or the Japs.

However, American forces from the central and southwest Pacific, supported by the Allies, may launch an invasion drive that will bring on another headache for the Jap high command.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and Gen. Douglas MacArthur and their forces are heading toward the Philippines and China. Such a move westward may be speeded up because of the Jap threat to China.

Once American forces are established at any point in the commonwealth, the Japs in China will have plenty to think about.

First objective of course will be establishment of airfields in the Philippines, and airmen from there will join with air forces in Asia to plaster Japanese communication lines at sea and on land.

Rider Cuts Cabaret Tax
Senators interested in reducing the cabaret tax pulled a fast one by tacking a rider on the debt limit bill slashing the levy from 30 to 20 per cent.

If the tax reduction had been carried alone in a separate bill, or appended to a less urgent measure, it might have run afoul of a presidential veto, since the treasury is on record as opposing any reduction in the 30 per cent levy.

But carried as a rider to the debt limit bill, there is much less chance of a veto.

The reason is that the bill increases the debt limit from 210 to 260 billion dollars, and is vital to treasury plans for borrowing money to finance the war.

On June 30 the public debt will have climbed to the dizzy total of 198 billion dollars, according to treasury estimates. This will be only 12 billion dollars below the present 210 billion dollar ceiling and such a margin will rapidly disappear at the present rate of war spending.

Get Rid of Old Debt Worries

WITH A Lawrence Savings Personal Loan

If you find it difficult to meet an accumulation of debts, a Lawrence Savings Personal Loan offers a convenient solution. Just as it did in this case, for example . . .

Jim is one of the best men in our shop. But I noticed his work was beginning to get sloppy and I could tell something was worrying him. One day at lunch he opened up and told me about it . . . Some time ago, he ran up quite a few bills while his wife was sick and his pay check was a lot smaller. "I'm making good money now," he said, "but everyone wants to be paid in full right away. I just can't do it."

So I told him about my experience with a Personal Loan at Lawrence Savings. He saw the point right away. Now he's his old self again, because he's cleaned up all those debts in a business-like way—just like I did—and it's easy for him to make regular payments on his loan.

Whenever you need money for any worthy purpose, you'll find it pleasant and economical to deal with Lawrence Savings.

STATE FIFTH IN MAPLE PRODUCT HARVEST IN 1944

HARRISBURG, June 21.—Pennsylvania ranked fifth this year among the ten northern states in production of maple products, according to the annual report on maple sugar and sirup compiled by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service in the State Department of Agriculture. The season was generally favorable for production and longer than usual.

Estimated on the basis of all sugar, greatest production this year was in Vermont, with 8,126,000 pounds, about 800,000 pounds under last year. The reduction was largely due to lack of labor. As in Pennsylvania, sugar harvest on many farms were not opened this year. New York State produced 6,811,000 pounds, about the same as last year. Ohio ranked third in production with 2,242,000 pounds; Michigan fourth with 1,342,000 pounds; Pennsylvania fifth with 1,092,000 pounds compared with only 787,000 in 1943; Massachusetts sixth with 478,000; New Hampshire seventh with 441,000; Wisconsin eighth with 403,000; Maine ninth with 206,000; and Maryland tenth with 190,000 pounds. Pennsylvania maple products this year included 133,000 gallons of sirup compared with 95,000 gallons last year, and 28,000 pounds of sugar, 1,000 pounds more than in 1943. Same sirup may be converted into sugar later.

CAREFUL CANNING HELPS PREVENT FOOD SPOILAGE

After all the time and money that homemakers invest in canning, it is heartbreaking to have canned foods spoil. A check-up right now on some of the reasons for spoilage may prevent the same thing from happening again this year.

One homemaker reported that she had eight quarts of tomatoes spoil. Naturally she was puzzled because tomatoes are one of the easy vegetables to can. Before you can determine the reason for spoilage it is necessary to check each step in the canning process to see where you might have done something wrong.

Utmost cleanliness in handling all the food and equipment is a safety measure in avoiding food spoilage. Next in importance is speed—"the shortest time possible from the garden to the jar" is a good rule to follow and this means from one to two hours.

Other points to check are:

1. Are there any nicks around the top edge of the jar?

2. Did you follow carefully directions for sealing, depending upon the type of lid used?

3. Did you prepare only enough food to fill the jars that could be processed at one time?

4. Before sealing did you insert a knife into each jar to free the air bubbles?

5. Did you check your chart for the processing time, whether by pressure cooker or boiling water bath?

Failure to do any one or a combination of two or more of these points may cause food to spoil. Safeguard yourself now against possible spoilage later.

You May Have Pressure Cooker Gauge Tested

Is the pressure cooker you use for home canning accurate in pressure and temperature? To find this out, pressure cooker gauges may be tested at the Agricultural Extension office, 206 Post Office building, New Castle, according to Miss Josephine Simpson, home economics extension representative. A new gauge tester has been secured and is available for public use, without charge.

Gauges should be checked every year if the cooker has been used extensively, and probably every two years regardless of use. Inaccuracies will cause changes of temperature. This might mean that food would not be processed sufficiently to keep it from spoiling.

Some inaccuracies may be corrected. If this is not possible, new gauges may now be purchased. New control valves are available now, too.

Miss Simpson will be in the Agricultural Extension office Friday morning, June 23, to check gauges. Bringing them in at this time will avail individuals the opportunity of getting them checked on Friday. Gauges may be left at the Extension office, 206 Post Office building, at any time and will be tested within a few days, however.

Allied Pilots Shooting Down Robot Planes

By DIXIE TIGHE
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

AT AN RAF FRONTLINE BASE IN ENGLAND, June 21—Allied pilots from this airfield are today demonstrating the superiority of mind over matter, attacking with effect the "brainless" robot planes dispatched by the Germans in the form of robot planes against southern England.

The robot, flying fast and level, has a highly-maneuverable opponent in the Tempest, one of Britain's crack fighters, already one squadron of these planes has brought down 47 of the flying bombs.

High man of the squadron is American Pilot Officer Buck Feldman of Brooklyn, N. Y., he's nipped off four and one-half robots, having shared one.

Each appearance of the robot is in the nature of a new "guinea pig assignment" to the Tempest boys, who have flown in close alongside the pilotless machine and found the most vulnerable spots. At first, they kept a distance of about 400 yards between the robot and their plane, but now the allied airmen move in much nearer.

"I would rather fight a plane with a man in it," Feldman said. "To which a British colleague interjected:

"Me, too; because when you get it, it's two in one shot."

Another American in the squadron is Flight Lieutenant, Lefty Whitman of Philadelphia, Pa.

"It's sinister, fighting something in the air that cannot hit back. Of course, I am not mad that it can't take evasive action but it is strictly sinister."

Most of the pilots feel that the pilotless plane is not long for this world. They do not underestimate its power, however, but are spurred on by the eeriness of its boss-less operation to conquer it.

Allied Air Force Foiled Program Of Robot Bombs

By PIERRE J. HUSS
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, June 21—The vigilant Allied Air Force during the last six months knocked the props out from under Adolf Hitler's plan to force Britain to her knees through a hail of huge robot bombs catapulted from giant platforms on the Pas de Calais coast of northern France, reliable information disclosed today.

The current "buzz-bombs" are considerably smaller and in effect an ersatz replica of the original German secret weapon, although the latter had not much greater travelling range than the south of England.

Sought To Terrorize
But Hitler staked extensive hopes of terrorizing England into submission by mass bombardment with robot bombs. In the latter part of 1943, the so-called "rocket coast" was designated as most suitable for an operational base.

Plans were formulated to hold an outdoor event on July 11 at the home of Mrs. William Mooney, Wilmington road.

A tasty lunch was served at a late hour by the hostess.

Plans were formulated to hold an outdoor event on July 11 at the home of Mrs. William Mooney, Wilmington road.

Several of these platforms bore a superstructure which gave the impression that a deep stretch of the sea had been transformed into a skiers' paradise.

These structures closely resembled the Olympic ski-jump platform and obviously were intended to catapult into the air whatever heavy bodies were designed to spin up instead of down its sweeping course.

It can now be disclosed that the Allied Air Force at a given moment pounced on these platforms systematically. After a couple of weeks the Germans saw the futility of such a plan and tried again with skillfully camouflaged platforms but again were bombed out.

Although a few underground catapults may now exist, the majority of "buzz-bombs" hitting the south of England are coming from improvised mobile platforms which themselves sooner or later will be discovered and destroyed.

It seems fairly certain that Hitler hoped to shatter all invasion preparations in the south of England in the last six months with showers of robot bombs, much the same as the R.A.F. broke up his invasion barge fleet in 1940 through diligent bombing of channel and North sea ports.

But this "master plan" of Hitler's died a frazzled death because the fuel he calculated wrong and reckoned without Allied resourcefulness and air power. Today Hitler's robot has roused England into a new state of fury against wanton Nazi warfare.

ART
The movement toward a fuller understanding of Art as a social and economic force is being recognized not only by schools and artists but by the manufacturer and the consumer, who for a long time have been demanding a better design to the products for every day use. Today there are more people awakened to an interest in the Arts than ever before. The average man's idea of Art is no longer limited to that of pictures on canvas but is the result of his realization of the need of color and design in his everyday life and in American manufacturing and merchandising.

There is a consciousness of the need of Art in every community as a force working for finer taste in the people at large. Also there is a growing realization that the gifted and talented child is precious and should be discovered, trained, guided, and conserved. But above all, there is the realization that Art Education in our schools has the far reaching advantage of dealing with plastic, impressionable childhood, developing aptitudes, interests and skills—something to live by and something to live for.

Art is decidedly for the many and not just for the few as it is the many who will have to use it all their life. It is the many who as citizens seek cleaner, happier living conditions and who realize that the aims of Art Education are identical with these purposes.

The study of Art as taught in our schools not only aids artists, designers, manufacturers, makers and salespeople but contributes much toward a finer public taste.

It is giving a training in finer discrimination in the selection, the purchase and the use of manufactured articles for the person, the home, and business.

These hundred percent needs. The young people who enjoy these Art experiences in their school life today will be the consumers and manufacturers of tomorrow. Girls and boys who have learned about grace and good taste will carry those qualities into their daily lives. Their homes will be lovelier because they have mastered the principles of Art. They will be among the first to vote for finer cleaner streets and more beautiful cities and will be a force in every home, office or community where they live or work.

Dr. V. C. Kirby, Chief of Art Education in Pennsylvania, has said "the Art taste of the community will be no better and no worse than the standards established in its public schools." Since we are a democratic people we foster Art because it is an expression of individuality and individuality is a quality which our Constitution has guarded zealously through out the years. It is a wholesome, spontaneous expression of the individual's reaction to the world in which he lives. If we look about us we realize how much artistic expression has added to our world. We have not only learned to produce fine canvases and pieces of sculpture but we have carried Art into the most minute and ordinary corners of our daily lives. It now deals with the utensils in our kitchens, our dishes, our furniture, our clothing, our garden. Democratic Art like our government is a part of the life of every class of people in every kind of home and in every kind of business.

The study of Art in our schools develops increasingly higher standards of social behavior by teaching such characteristics as co-operation, self confidence, initiative, concentration, responsibility, sense of humor, creativeness and courtesy. These traits woven into the students of today will be welded into the every day needs of tomorrow.

ARTIFICIAL BREEDING INTERESTS DAIRYMEN

Lawrence county dairymen have watched with interest the operation of the Artificial Breeding associations now organized throughout the county. As a result many of them are now interested in organizing such a unit in Lawrence county.

The dairymen feel that the main advantage of artificial breeding is that the average dairyman can secure the use of excellent bulls to improve the production of his herd. Records of Dairy Herd Improvement associations show that only half of the bulls in use increase the production of the daughters over the dams, and the marked increase in production. Under normal conditions these superior bulls could be used on one to two herds only, but by means of artificial breeding their usefulness can be extended to several hundred herds.

Other advantages are: less expense, especially for the small herd owner, no danger or inconvenience from keeping a bull; feed and room may be used for other cattle.

Disadvantages sometimes mentioned are that the individual dairyman cannot choose the blood lines which he wishes to use in breeding and that in large herds the expense may be greater. The spread of disease has not been a problem because the inseminators are very careful to avoid carrying disease from one farm to another.

CULTIVATE CORN ONLY TO KETP DOWN WEEDS

A good rule to follow in corn cultivation is to cultivate often and deep enough to kill weeds and break up cracks in the soil. Many farmers like to cultivate too deep for the good of the corn. Deep cultivation turns up moisture which would not be lost by shallow cultivation. It also serves roots of the growing plants.

The sweep or "duckfoot" type of cultivator shovel will do the best job of killing weeds and causes less damage to corn plants. Half-sweeps should be always used next to the corn row.

SPRAY POTATOES NOW TO CONTROL LATE BLIGHT

Early spraying of potatoes is needed to control late blight, with complete coverage of the young plants as soon as the tuber sprout high enough to follow the row being essential.

The fungus causing late blight spreads as soon as potato sprouts reach the surface and requires prompt control to prevent getting established. No material has yet been proven more effective than the home-made bordeaux mixture. This is prepared by mixing eight pounds of bluestone with eight pounds of lime to a hundred gallons of water.

Equally important is the complete coverage when the nozzle opening is large enough to produce a good mist. Too large openings result in large droplets and poor distribution, while small disc openings do not make effective coverage. High pressure aids in breaking up the spray.

When weather conditions are favorable for development of the blight, or when potatoes are growing rapidly, it may be necessary to spray every five or six days to insure good coverage and keep the potatoes from becoming infested with the blight.

PRE-SHRUNK COTTON BEST FOR SUCCESS IN SEWING
For one reason or another, some cotton materials at present need to be preshrunk before they are made into garments. Loosely woven fabrics are more likely to shrink than more firmly woven ones. Unless cotton fabrics are plainly marked "preshrunk" it is advisable to shrink them. It is an easy job

Jap Escape Move Foiled By Chinese

KANDY, Ceylon, June 21.—(INS)—Chinese troops wiped out a Japanese force attempting to escape from encircled Moggaung, Adm. Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters announced today.

The Chinese and British Chindit troops were forming a "tight circle" around the important North Burma communications center when the Jap party sought to escape down the Magoung river on rafts. The enemy troops were caught on rafts south of Kamaing and exterminated.

Other of Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's forces in the Myikina area destroyed a series of Japanese strongpoints, and Kachin Levies and Gurkha troops captured Nip six miles to the south in their drive from Tiansau.

"Many casualties were inflicted on the enemy trying to escape from these villages," the communiqué added.

Further progress was made on the Imphal and Kohima fronts at the India-Burma frontier, and long-range fighters which were over the Prome and Pymmana area yesterday damaged oil lines in three places. Fire were started.

Sikorsky Sees Religious Need

PITTSBURGH, June 21.—(INS)—Igor I. Sikorsky, famous aeronautical engineer and designer of the helicopter today expressed the belief that there must be a great renewal of religious idealism.

One of the world's most distinguished inventors, Sikorsky is deeply interested in spiritual forces that guide the destiny of man.

"There must be a great renewal of religious idealism because, without this, our supreme efforts and military victories would prove as useless as the victory of the first World War," he said.

"At present, the danger of our country's being conquered by hostile military forces is extremely unlikely, but the danger of ourselves being conquered by evil principles which we are fighting abroad is real and most serious."

Outer Defense Of Cherbourg Is Penetrated

By LEE CARSON

AN ADVANCED RECONNAISSANCE BASE IN SOUTH EAST ENGLAND, June 21. — American troops now occupy a height overlooking Cherbourg and have penetrated the perimeter defenses protecting the city, reports to this base said today.

At the same time advance units fanned out northeast, crowding remnants of a German infantry division into tight, escape-oriented pockets on the peninsula tips at Cap De La Hague and St. Pierre-Eglise.

Move Into Position
Americans, troops, tanks, heavy artillery and assault weapons are moving rapidly into position for the expected siege of Cherbourg.

The strength of the enemy at Cherbourg was estimated at not more than 35,000 including semi-regular workers of the TODT organization, garrison troops and scraps of three divisions which managed to run faster than the advancing Americans could move en masse.

Observers doubt whether any organized German tactical force is within the city.

Swift capture of the dominating height was seen as an indication that the siege may be short-lived.

Doubtless the Allied navies are fully prepared to meet any attempt at a German sea-borne evacuation.

Under Heavy Bombardment

The city of Cherbourg and the two points of land at the extremity of the peninsula still occupied by German troops are under continual air and artillery bombardment.

American stockades are filled to overflowing with German prisoners who still are pouring in.

The other alternative for the surrendering Germans was clearly visible to them. Those who gave themselves up saw the graves of 2,800 of their comrades who were buried within the past few days.

On the east coast of the peninsula, Americans in the Port Quille-Ville area began a rapid march north to outflank the Germans caught at the northeast tip.

The same kind of move by forces on the west coast kicked up columns of dust along the west coast road.

Meantime fighter-bombers continued to spray enemy roads with high explosives while the systematic demolition of bridges and marshaling yards was stepped up south and west of Paris.

Claim 10,000 Japs Slain Near Imphal

NEW YORK, June 21.—(INS)—The British radio said today 10,000 Japs have been slain on the Imphal front since the enemy offensive on the India-Burmese border was launched three months ago.

"This total does not include probable casualties due to bombing and artillery fire," the broadcast, as heard by CBS, added.

Three Persons Are Killed By Fumes

YORK, Pa., June 21.—(INS)—An outside vent clogged by a colony of wasps was blamed Tuesday for the deaths of three elderly persons in a gas-filled house at nearby Red Lion.

The victims, found by a milkman, were E. H. Strayer, 82, his 79-year-old wife, Emma, and a neighbor, Mrs. Cora Workinger, 74.

Gas company employees explained that the wasps built a nest in the vent and escaping gas broke a seam on the meter filling the house.

GIRL LIFEGUARDS ON MANY BEACHES

WILDWOOD, N. J.—(INS)—This season will see fewer girls hanging around the life guard stands in North Wildwood, for the guards atop the posts will be girls. Mayor George A. Redding, who has issued an appeal for women applicants for the jobs, said the days of the bronzed, male Adonises seems to be over for the duration of the war.

Ninety per cent of the guards who were on duty last summer now are in the armed forces, he added.

The two lower pockets of the Army's newest combat uniform holds nine hand grenades each.

More Workers Needed In State

State War Manpower Commission Says 1261 More Workers Are Needed In New Castle

HARRISBURG, June 21.—(INS)—A report of the State War Manpower commission emphasized today that Pennsylvania was confronted with a labor drought despite the production of one-fourth of the war materials used by the Allied nations.

Acting Director Carl B. Hart estimated that war industries in 13 key production areas would need approximately 56,000 workers within the next 10 days but he indicated there was little hope of filling the vacancies. The shortage was expected to reach more than 82,000 workers before November 1.

Hart pointed out that the estimate was based only on the reports of 1031 employers and excluded the labor needs of smaller war plants throughout Pennsylvania.

The shortages, Hart said, were in Erie, 2267; Harrisburg, 5165; Johnstown, 2128; Lancaster, 2024; New Castle, 1261; Pittsburgh, 8076; Reading, 3657; Scranton, 12,974; Wilkes-Barre, 3291.

HARRISBURG, June 21.—The reorganization of departmental functions and the attending reclassification of hundreds of state employees is reported to be accomplishing the purpose of Gov. Edward Martin . . . The revision, first since 1933, has pruned many overpaid minor officials from payrolls while others have been transferred to duties in keeping with their abilities . . . One of the faults of the state system is to be found in the appointment of employees to well paying positions although they have no knowledge of the responsibilities of the position. Such well paid, but normally idle workers, are known among fellow employees as "drones."

Organization voting will be one of the features of balloting in the November 7 election because party leaders realize the huge independent vote is too preoccupied with war work to show much interest in politics . . . The doorbell pushers will get the vote out election day among party regulars because they always turn up at the polls for various reasons . . . Some have state jobs and feel a certain amount of party loyalty; others hope to get state jobs or some other political benefit while many vote solely in the interest of friends or relatives.

Pennsylvania has never been a fertile ground for presidential candidates on the prohibition ticket since the first "dry" found a place on the ballot in 1872 when James Black carried the banner . . . He won 1632 votes . . . The highest vote ever recorded by the party's nominee was the 42,696 given to Aaron S. Watkins in 1920 . . . Despite the widespread prohibition sentiment in the state and nation during the so-called "noble experiment," dry candidates found it tough going in Pennsylvania . . . In five presidential elections since 1920, prohibition candidates never captured more than the 11,369 votes they ran up in 1932.

Inasmuch as the nation's whiskey stocks are growing thinner daily the state liquor control board can be expected to order a longer rationing period next time to stretch the supplies allocated to Pennsylvania. The current period expires July 8.

The department of forests and waters has disclosed that only about 4000 acres of forests lands remain of the vast timber tracts that blanketed Pennsylvania's 28,650,000 acres when William Penn was proprietor . . . Between 1850 and 1870 Pennsylvania was the world's greatest timber producing region but by the turn of the century the output began to decline . . . During the past 25 years, private lumbermen have planted more than 165,000,000 forest trees and each year more "plantations" are started . . . The department has urged farmers to plant trees on land unfit for cultivation.

War Loan Bonds For Every Purse

No Matter Your Needs, There Is A Bond That Just Suits You—Buy Now

What issue of war loan bonds shall I buy? This isn't the $64 question, it's one that entails a lot more, or less depending upon the state of your purse, your ideas of what you want to save and the degree of patriotism you have.

Beginning with the premise that you are going to buy bonds in this fifth war loan campaign you have nearly as large an assortment from which to choose as a penny candy store before the war. Any one of the issues is sound, any one of them helps the war effort, any one of them is among the best investments you can possibly make, the only question now is what kind and what size?

Wide Selection
First, what purpose have you in mind for the money in the bond? Maximum yield, current income, future income, short term, medium term, long term, marketability, bank collateral, paying taxes, for your estate, for gifts, for education of the children, for self retirement or for investment of business reserves and other temporary benefits?

For maximum yield you have the "E" savings bond paying 2.9 per cent if you hold them for the 10-year maturity, the "F" savings bonds which pay 2.53 per cent if held to the 12-year maturity, and the "G" bonds paying 2.5. For current income the "G" savings bonds Treasury 2's of 1965 and 1970 are the ticket. For future income, the "E" and "F" savings bonds are what you are looking for.

For short term investment take the 7-8 per cent certificates, for medium term take the "E", "F" or "G". For long term the Treasury 2's (26 years). For marketability take the Treasury 2's and 2½'s, coupons or registered form, 1½ per cent notes, or certificates of indebtedness. For bank loan collateral take the Treasury 1½'s, 2's, 2½'s or the 7-8's.

For paying taxes, the series C savings notes are handy, for your estate the Series G (redeemable at par on death of owner) or the Treasury 2's (redeemable at par for estate taxes only on death of owner). For gifts, the handy "E" is right, or for the education of children, or for self retirement. For investment of business reserves and other temporary funds, the 7-8 certificates of indebtedness, the Treasury 1½, notes and Series C savings notes are the ones you want.

There is this to remember, the interest bearing bonds are sold at par up to June 26th. After that there is a small interest rate to pay on them. This doesn't apply to the "E", "F" and "G" bonds.

In short, there's a bond for every pocketbook, including yours. You loan the money to Uncle Sam, he buys arms and ammunition to lick the Axis, the Axis is licked and the bonds come back to you with interest. It's as simple as that.

When you buy a bond you get a sticker for the window. Show it. It is the badge of honor for civilians, just as the service star flags are badges of honor for those who have boys or girls in the service.

Many Turned Down By Tuberculosis

PITTSBURGH, June 21—(INS)—According to Dr. C. Howard Marcy, president of the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis society, more than 17,000 commonwealth men today have been rejected for military service because of tuberculosis.

"An increasing number of veterans are being discharged because of the disease," the medical director of the Pittsburgh Tuberculosis league said at a conference of western Pennsylvania tuberculosis workers in Pittsburgh.

"Tuberculosis hospital facilities have always been inadequate in this state," he declared, "and must be increased. Another need lies in better co-ordination among state and municipal health departments, medical and nursing organizations and school authorities."

Turkey Makes New Promises

LONDON, June 21—(INS)—Turkey has promised the Allies that she will forbid passage of German torpedo boats and E-boats through the Dardanelles in the future, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today.

Public Warning! BEWARE OF PIN-WORMS

War-time living conditions may be the cause of spreading Pin-Worm infection. Scientific reports in many communities have shown at least one-third of the examined children and grown-ups to be victims of Pin-Worms—often without knowing what was wrong.

Watch out for the warning signs that may mean Pin-Worms in your child or yourself: the tormenting, embarrassing rectal itch, the uneasy stomach, bed-wetting, nervous fidgeting, finicky appetite.

New Discovery Hailed By Doctors

After centuries of distress caused by Pin-Worms, a new and highly effective way to deal with this stubborn pest has recently been discovered. This scientific discovery, hailed by medical authorities, is a remarkable drug (medical violet). It is the vital element in P-W, the new Pin-Worm treatment developed by the laboratories of Dr. D. Jayne & Son, America's leading specialists in worm medicines. P-W tablets are small and easy to take, and they act in a special way to destroy the creatures.

So don't take chances with Pin-Worms. At the first warning sign, ask your druggist for P-W, and follow the directions. P-W means Pin-Worm relief!

LOCAL CITIZENS SHOW INTEREST

Improvements And Equipment Are Provided At Deshon Hospital Annex Here

Out at Deshon General Hospital Annex in Cunningham Park the men located there now have two pool tables in the recreation hall put into shape as well as new. The tables were the gift of local citizens but were in need of some minor repairs such as green baize coverings and pockets.

Jake Elias, local pool table repair expert who conditioned many tables at Camp Reynolds was asked if he would condition the Annex tables and as usual responded gratuitously. The repairs are now made and the tables are in use.

The porch boxes made possible by F. Paul Butz and J. W. Anderson with the cooperation of all the florists in the city, now grace the porches of all the buildings in camp. In addition a huge circular flower bed has been constructed around the base of the flag pole.

Drapes have been hung in the windows of the recreation hall, a job that took plenty of time and materials to care for the 100 or more windows there. This work was done through the aid of Mrs. L. C. Mantz and a group of women of the Third United Presbyterian church.

The immediate need at the annex is a piano (one that is in fair shape) and the installation of a tennis court. The tennis court would need a little money, not much and the men themselves would provide the labor.

This week Daniel Racioppa, author of "Is Your Brain Itchy," a book of brain teasers compiled by him sent out forty copies of his catchy little booklet to the men in camp.

Engineers Discuss Portable Plants

Power, Trains And Package-Type Power Plants Are Latest Thing At Westinghouse

PITTSBURGH, June 21—(INS)—Discussions about power trains and package-type plants today were featured at the semi-annual meeting in Pittsburgh of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

H. H. Vankennens and Lester E. F. Wahrenburg of the Peter F. Lotius Company discussed the package type plant, which has a relatively small output capacity of 300 kilowatts. "These small plants can be assembled in 36 hours," the men stated, "and this time element is of extreme importance, since in many instances these plants will move with armies."

Power trains—mobile, electric-generating stations on railroad cars—are capable of generating 1,000 or 3,000 kilowatts. Each train of from three to eight cars is a self-contained generating plant, containing the equipment of a regular power house and requiring only coal and water for its operation.

C. M. Laflon, of Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, stated that the company was now building for the war effort forty-five 1,000-kilowatt and ten 3,000-kilowatt portable self-contained steam electric power plants.

"They are assembled in specially designed railway cars which, with suitable trucks, can be transported over railroads and can be operated to generate electric power while located on railway sidings," he said.

Price Control Measure Near Final Action

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
(N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 21—A bill extending the price control act for one year, together with huge appropriation measures were rushed toward final enactment by congress today in a feverish drive for a five weeks' recess beginning Friday night.

The recess seemed assured when Democratic leaders reported that President Roosevelt will sign the price control extension bill, despite OPA disappointment over curtailment of its drastic enforcement power.

A joint senate-house conference agreement on the rice control measure was to be put forth before the senate. The agreement was made possible when a compromise was devised for the Bankhead cotton "escalator" amendment bitterly opposed by OPA.

The price control extension measure, while giving the OPA vast power to stabilize prices, liberalized enforcement provisions. The compromise for the Bankhead amendment requires OPA to fix ceiling prices for cotton textiles which will make it possible to pay farmers parity for cotton.

Sees Benefit

Sen. Bankhead (D) Ala. declared that the amendment paves the way for increased manufacture of low-priced cotton clothing.

"This will take the inflation out of cotton goods prices that exists under a present OPA administration," he said. "It is up to OPA to work with us to get justice for the farmer and to provide more low priced clothes."

The senate meanwhile sent to conference the war agencies bill carrying a $500,000 appropriation to continue the president's fair employment practices committee, but with amendments which FEPC friends described as crippling.

Out of the bitter attack on FEPC by southern senators came amendments which prohibit seizure of a plant as a result of FEPC orders and prohibit FEPC from issuing any order repealing or modifying any act of congress.

The 49 billion dollar war department appropriation bill was to be passed by the senate today, while both branches sought to clear up disputed amendments on budget bills.

AMERICANS ARE SMASHING INTO PORT DEFENSES

force the capitulation of the German defenders behind artillery shelling from 155 millimeter guns.

A headquarters spokesman said that the Americans were "beginning to come upon enemy strongpoints in the Cherbourg defensive area."

A summary issued after Communiqué No. 31 was read said that Yank reconnaissance troops were within five miles of Cherbourg on the southwest and seven miles on the south. The summary, however, referred to the American position "at noon yesterday," and subsequent direct dispatches from the fighting front said the Yanks were within less than four miles of the city.

Advance Satisfactory

Headquarters said that its advances showed the American advances "continued most satisfactorily."

The communiqué confirmed the fact that American troops had entered and liberated the town of Valognes, Les Pleux, Couville and Rauville-La-Bigot on the approaches to Cherbourg.

No change was reported on the south side of the corridor driven across the entire peninsula. The situation was said to be roughly the same as yesterday, when troops pressing southward advanced beyond St. Lo D'Ouvrie in the direction of La Haye Du Puits.

In the Carentan area, at the southeastern side of the base of the peninsula, there was no change of importance. Also, there was little report concerning the situation around the road junction city of St. Lo, southeast of Carentan.

American Line

The American line before Cherbourg at noon yesterday, headquarters said, ran from a position three miles north of the peninsula east coast port of Quineville, then west to four and one-half miles northeast of Valognes, south to one mile north of Valognes, then north to six miles northwest of Valognes. From there the line extends westward to Acqueville, then again westward to LaCroix Fronto. From then on the line is obscure, it was pointed out, but probably a river line to the coast.

Along the center of the invasion front, the Germans launched three attacks in the area of British-held Tilly-Sur-Seulles, but the enemy assaults were held.

Very heavy fighting was under way in the Tilly-Sur-Seulles to Hottot-Les-Bacques area. The position around Hottot, about two miles south of Tilly, was obscure.

Capture Village

The British captured the village of Onchy, three and one-half miles southwest of Tilly.

In the Caen and Orne river sector to the east no change was reported.

There was active patrolling on all other sectors of the front, headquarters said.

Allied bombing planes maintained their support of the ground forces in the Normandy battle area.

Last night light bombers attacked the railway centers of Moidon and Chartres and other Nazi communication points. Night fighter planes destroyed two German aircraft.

Robot bomb sites in the Pas de Calais area, from where the Nazis continue to send pilotless planes against England, were blasted in the afternoon and evening by fighter-bombers which also hammered coastal batteries at Houltte and gun positions at Cherbourg.

Other fighter bombers struck locomotives, troop trains and railway installations over widespread areas of northern France. Preliminary reports showed 11 German aircraft were destroyed while four Allied planes were missing.

Weather of the landing beaches remained unfavorable for unloading. A north-northeast wind with a velocity of 25 miles an hour prevailed.

MEET TONIGHT

There will be an entertainment by members of Post 8-1 at St. Vitus church basement tonight, according to OGD officials. Members of the Hamilton Post, 4-8 will receive certificates of award tonight, they added.

FALSE ALARM

City firemen were called to Jefferson and Maitland streets at 10:52 o'clock Tuesday night. Fire Chief James E. Thomas reports, they were unable to find any fire in that vicinity, however.

Squadron Installs Camera In Mustang Tail After Engineers Declared Job Impossible

Among others in a ninth air force service squadron stationed in England, Pvt. William H. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester A. Johnson, 414 Madison avenue, is installing cameras in the tails of P-51 Mustangs, a job leading aircraft engineers said "couldn't be done."

The squadron managed in one week to complete the installation of a camera after experts "proved" that it couldn't be done. In less than three months, 50 more Mustangs were equipped and were shooting at Nazi targets with their machine guns and with their cameras at the same time.

With much larger than the other cameras used for air photography, the pilots can fly high, where enemy planes can't match their speed, and the chances of bringing back important photos are increased.

Included in the demonstration was the safe use of ropes, knots, sliding, first aid, water safety signalling, fire building and training.

The boys taking part were Bob Reed, Jim McClouds, Gilbert Gray and Ted Castle.

E. D. Hawk, Lawrence county scout commissioner, announced that more than 25 boys who were formerly scouts, and now were in the armed forces, advanced rapidly in their ranks due to their knowledge of scouting.

President Paul Failla urged members to purchase more war bonds during the fifth war bond drive. A contribution was given to the clothing for Italy drive. The Wolves members have pledged themselves to raise more funds to maintain the building of more service men shelters.

July 16 is the date for the annual picnic, program chairman James Lombardo, announced. A board meeting will be held on Wednesday, June 28. The meeting closed with the reading of a letter by Fred DeCarbo from a former member, Tech. Sgt. Anthony Mastrana, now stationed in England.

State Sanitary Board Considers Canal Project

State Board Members See Canal As "Menace To Health" In Area

PITTSBURGH, June 21.—The Pennsylvania Sanitary Water Board today was asked to join Western Pennsylvania industrial interests in opposing construction of the proposed "stub-end" 35-mile canal from the Ohio river to 30 miles O. The industrial interests have based their opposition on economic grounds. But when the board met in Pittsburgh today to discuss steam purification plans with representatives of district municipalities, members of the board were told the proposed canal would be "a menace to health" in Pennsylvania.

It would be an open, stagnant sewer, charged John J. Heard, of Pittsburgh, spokesman for the Upper Ohio Valley Association, a group which has been fighting the canal proposal.

Heard said that although the canal would proceed through only four of its 35 miles in Ohio and the rest in Pennsylvania, the communities in the four-mile Ohio stretch have no provision for sewer disposal to protect the health of Pennsylvania towns along the rest of the way.

Youngstown, Struthers, Warren, Niles and other Ohio towns on the Mahoning river were also attacked by Edwin C. Gresham, assistant manager of the Beaver Falls, Pa., Municipal Authority, for "making the Mahoning river one of the worst polluted rivers of all" when it enters Pennsylvania. Gresham declared that all major Pennsylvania towns on the Shenango and Beaver rivers, including New Castle, Ellwood City, Sharon and Farrell have sewage disposal plants.

He urged the Sanitary Water Board to "bring pressure on Ohio" to undertake water purification programs comparable to those in operation, under construction or contemplated in Pennsylvania.

The water board, headed by Pennsylvania Secretary of Health A. H. Stewart of Indiana, is on a tour of state watersheds to outline to communities in each section what requirements will have to be met in water purification in order to be handed down "shortly."

Today, it met with representatives of towns along the Kiskimintus, Conemaugh, Loyalhanna and Beaver and other rivers in the western area above Pittsburgh. Spokesmen for sportsmen's groups participating in the conference urged support to the board's plans.

These plans call for a progressively intensive program for cleaning up streams by community sewage disposal plants and industrial waste pollution controls. Industrial acids comprise one of the hardest problems for the board to lick, and Arthur W. Hemi of Pittsburgh, speaking for Isaac Walton League, urged that experimentation on this problem be undertaken behind the Loyalhanna dam where great amounts of acid-polluted water will be impounded.

The sanitary water board, in answer to queries as to how municipalities were to pay for sewage disposal plants, said they have the right to charge sewer rents and sewer service charges if they wish.

Reveal Nazis Put Out Peace Feelers During December

LONDON, June 21.—(INS)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden disclosed today that Nazi peace feelers were put out to London last December but spurned as another maneuver to split up the United Nations.

Speaking in Commons, Eden said the government was informed at that time of "certain views" alleged to have been expressed by German officials in regard to possible peace terms.

The foreign secretary added: "As this information bore all the familiar marks of a typical German maneuver designed to sow distrust between the United Nations, the British government ignore it."

Senators Protest Alcohol Holiday

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(INS)—Corn-belt senators today protested WPA legislation to allow distillers a "holiday" to produce beverage alcohol, asserting that it posed the issue of "food versus liquor."

"We are in a critical shortage of grains for feed and ought to conserve them," declared Sen. Reed (R) Kans.

"On the basis of statements of the war food administration, it is a question of food versus liquor."

The grain issue developed rapidly following WPA Chairman Donald M. Nelson's announcement that lessened requirements of the synthetic rubber program for industrial alcohol this year and next would permit release of the distillers' plants during August. They were converted to industrial alcohol manufacture in the fall of 1942.

Two Children Are Burned To Death

Six Other Persons Routed From Beds By Fire In Northside Pittsburgh Dwelling

PITTSBURGH, June 21.—(INS)—Two young children were burned to death and six other persons were routed from their beds today when fire of undetermined origin swept through a two-story frame dwelling in the north side.

Phyllis Destefano, seven, and her brother, Guy, five, children of a Marine corporal who had returned to Quantico, Va., Sunday night after a furlough at home, were the victims.

The children's mother, Mrs. Philip Destefano, 27, collapsed when she learned of the tragedy and was treated at a hospital. She had returned home from a drug store where she is employed only a short time before the fire and had stopped downstairs for a cup of coffee with a neighbor.

Damage was estimated at $2,000.

Glitch And Shoaf Suffer Injuries

Louis "Pick" Glitch, 61, and Albert Shoaf, 35, well known local painters, had a close call from serious injury while engaged in painting a house in the Delaware avenue project when a scaffold broke hurling them 25 to 30 feet to the ground.

Glitch was the most seriously injured, suffering a broken left wrist and bruises on the body and on his hands, while Shoaf was shaken up quite a bit and has a badly bruised shoulder.

Both men, formerly well known sandlot baseball players, will be off work for quite some time, it was indicated.

Over 40,000 Nazi Troops Cut Off

LONDON, June 21.—(INS)—Between 40,000 and 45,000 German troops are believed cut off between Cherbourg and the present American line, the London Evening News reported today.

"Their morale is of the lowest," the paper said.

THIRD TIME THIEVES REALLY HIT JACKPOT

NORRISTOWN, Pa.—(INS)—The thieves who broke into a Norrisstown service station were persistent. Their first two tries proved fruitless, but their third attempt netted them ration stamps good for approximately 1,300 gallons of gasoline.

Overdue Books Cost Borrowers Over $990

Carelessness can cost—plenty. Since June 9, thirty overdue books have been returned to the library along with $122.26, according to Miss Alice Stealing, librarian.

Fines for individual books ran as high as $2, but most of them centered around 50 cents. The money from these overdue books is added to the receipts of the library used to purchase new books. In 1943, negligent borrowers turned over $990.19 in fines. At an average cost of $2.50, this would buy almost 400 books, a high price to pay for carelessness.

More Bombers Down In Sweden

STOCKHOLM, June 21.—(INS)—Ten American Fortress and Liberator bombers made forced landings in southern Sweden today while en route back to Britain from a heavy raid on Germany. Two other bombers crashed on Swedish soil.

This boosted to 123 the total number of planes making forced landings in Sweden since the start of the war and to 26 the number crashing.

SAILORS PRACTICE ON INLAND LAKE

ASBURY PARK, N. J.—(INS)—With the whole broad Atlantic before them, Navy V-12 cadets at Asbury Park must turn their backs on it, march two blocks inland and practice handling of small boats on Deal Lake. Surf craft available are not considered sturdy enough for use in the breakers. Most of the boys are pretty sad about the situation, but their officers assure them the day will come when they will wish they were back on the lake.

Sergeant Cole On 55 Missions

Cherbourg May Fall In Six Days

LONDON, June 21.—(INS)—Observers in London believed today that Cherbourg may fall to the Americans within six days unless the Germans decide to fight to the bitter end.

If the Nazis determine on a last-ditch fight a period of three weeks might be required to force the capitulation of the port, it was said.

The Americans moving in on Cherbourg now are reaching hilly country which at some points is 800 feet high.

Latest estimates on the Cherbourg population placed the total number of persons in the city proper at 33,490 and about 60,000 if residents in the suburbs are included. It is not known, however, how many of the French residents were evacuated by the Germans.

City Police Are Being Kept Busy

Police are kept busy these days. For instance, they have been ordered to stop speeding on improved highways, especially Highland avenue, shoot dogs roaming at large, investigate the reported damage of several gardens and keep traffic moving at busy corners. Pedestrians now are also being required to obey traffic regulations.

Several arrests for intoxicated driving have occurred during the past few days and bicyclists also have been required to obey traffic rules, one having been arrested for "talking back" to an officer. Red light crashes also have paid fines, but speeding has decreased, it has been said.

Chief R. D. Hanna of the police bureau today said that as yet police have not shot any roaming dogs although the order "shoot" will be carried out because of several persons having contracted rabies from dogs, gardens being damaged and annoyance in neighborhoods where free dogs annoy those of people who keep them tied or on a "run."

AREA BOND SALES

PITTSBURGH, June 21.—(INS)—Individual sales of "E" bonds in the 12-county Fort Pitt area during the Fifth War Loan drive, which ends July 4 today totaled $13,829,400. The treasury-assigned allotment is $77,168,000.

The war finance committee announced that the total of individual sales for the area, including "E" bonds, amounted to $19,500,300. Of this sum, $7,999,300 was attributed to the 18 counties outside of Allegheny.

RATION SALES CHARGE

PITTSBURGH, June 21.—(INS)—Howard L. Bliss, 40, of Allegheny, today was held under $1,000 bond for a hearing before a U. S. commissioner on charges of violating OPA regulations by selling meat without receiving ration stamps.

Cardinals Pad Lead In League

Defeat Chicago Cubs As Pirates Flounder To Reds, Giants Lose To Dodgers

By JOHN CASHMAN
(International News Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, June 21—Anyone who calls that thing in the National league a "penant race" ought to surrender himself to the proper authorities. Over in the American league, where strict control over the loop is enjoyed by no one club and teams bounce up and down the standings like ping-pong balls, they're staging what looks to be the most unbridled flag fight ever seen in the majors.

The entire American league is so well balanced that none of the clubs are out of the fight unlike the National league, but instead are so well balanced that a defeat or triumph in a twin bill could easily move a team three runs up or down the standings.

Browns Increase Lead

Between last-place Cleveland and first-place St. Louis in the American league there are just 93 points. Between last-place Chicago and first-place St. Louis in the National league there is the staggering total of 344 points. See what we mean?

The Browns increased their AL lead, although they only a two-light-night twin bill with the Chicago White Sox. The Browns took the closing game, 5 to 0, after losing the twilight contest, 4 to 3, in ten innings.

Yanks Advance

The New York Yankees crept into fifth place with a 3 to 1 win over the Washington Senators on the four-hit pitching of Hank Borow.

The Indians dropped into the cellar with a victory, believe it or not, over the Detroit Tigers, 3 to 1. The loss was only mathematical.

Cards Pad Lead

In the National league, the Cards strengthened their grip on the loop with a 2 to 1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

The New York Giants lost a chance to step into second place when they dropped a 6 to 1 decision to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Bucky Walters hurled a two-hit shutout as the Cincinnati Reds topped the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3 to 0, in a night game. Only 33 Pirates faced Bucky, who fanned 32. Max Butcher, who started, was tabbed for the loss.

Ryabik Family Good Marble Shots

PITTSBURGH, June 21—(INS)—The Ryabik family crashed through with another champion marble shooter when the Pittsburgh bureau of recreation staged its finals. This time it was 12-year-old Ray brother of "Butch" Ryabik, who walked off with the national championship in the finals at Cleveland last year.

CAMPFIRE CORNER

IN THE NORTH WOODS

After a prolonged jaunt in an overloaded car along paved and none-too-good dirt roads, I find myself in a cabin on a lake deep in the heart of the north woods, 30 miles from a railroad. The region teems with fish, game, wood ticks and mosquitoes. Deerflies, horseflies, no-see-ems and black flies will join us later.

The spot is in Minnesota, but habitats of other northern regions would find it similar in many respects, to their own stamping grounds.

Our own small lake, home of streamlined bismuth bass, ripples in a setting of paper birches, poplars and conifers. It has an outlet into Beaver lake, named for the chisel-toothed dome-builders that dwell there.

Pike Abound

In Beaver you'll find great northern pike, but few other fish, since later in the season it's pretty well grown up to aquatic vegetation and it's comparatively shallow. Within half a mile is a large pond, sunk deep in a black spruce bog, and some three and a half miles in another direction, reached by a fire protection lane, is a body of water about two miles long that harbors delectable wall-eyes and huge northern bluegills, but, for some mysterious reasons, few bass. There's a miniature "minnow lake" not far away.

Beaver lake is named for the dome-builders who dwell there.

In fact it's said there are more than 1,000 lakes in the area, in such close proximity that you can drive to any one of them, do a day's fishing and return to wherever your headquarters may be within the span of 12 hours. Having noted the side roads that lead to some of these fishing meccas I doubt if such a feat could be performed consistently in anything short of an army jeep.

Not Trout Country

There are a few trout streams, too, where brookies, browns and sometimes rainbows swim, though this isn't a noted trout country. Muskies are not uncommon in the upper Mississippi and some of the other streams and lakes.

A considerable number of fishermen and hunters penetrate the region as the year progresses, but up to now, they're likely to encounter only a quasi-farmer, who combines guiding, fishing, hunting and trapping with tilling a bit of soil. Sometimes there's an Indian from a not far distant reservation, or a forest service man. Traffic is light on our side road.

ORLOWSKI ALLOWS JUST THREE HITS

Corporal Orlowski Hurls Three-Hitter As Moose Defeat Uni-Refracs, 16 To 2

Corporal Orlowski took the mound for the Moose club last evening at the E. & A. Field and pitched himself a beautiful three-hitter to up-end the Uni-Refracs, 16 to 2, with the Moose club batting out 19 hits off of Hill and C. Dean.

The Moose club enhanced its first-half championship hopes by stalling a first-inning rally that netted four runs and came back with three more in the second to make it 7 to 1, and then topped off the evening's evening with an eight-run rally in the top half of the fifth. Komuro with two doubles and two singles for four hits in four trips was the feature hitter, with Byak, Marshall and Budai also doing some fancy clowning of the ball.

It was the 12th win against two defeats for the Moose and if they win Thursday from the Bronzes they can take the first-half title.

When the two City Baseball league leaders, the Moose and Bronze, meet at 5:45 p. m. Thursday at Marshall field rivalry which already is at fever heat may result in one of the tightest games of the season—and again the strain may tell on one of the clubs and it may go "bust".

Fair Or Foul

By LAWTON CARVER
(International News Service Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, June 21—Like a man given up for lost, the name of Big Bill Tilden has popped back into the eastern sport pages. The heading on the stories is in type that you have to look for at great length. It doesn't glare out at you across the top of the page. You find it buried down among the dandruff cures, saying simply that Tilden is going to compete in the Red Cross benefit tennis exhibition at Forest Hills, beginning July 2.

For some of us it will be worth the trip all the way out on Long Island to watch him sweat a few drops, again, not that I was ever a tennis fan or ever saw much of Tilden. But I saw enough of both the sport and of the man himself to know, even though he already was faded then, that he must have been by far the finest machine that ever traveled a tennis court.

In Mid-Forties

He's in his mid-forties now, an age when paunchy old gents strip themselves down to shorts and puff and huff through a couple of sets of pat-ball, but unless he has slipped tremendously in three or four years he still will be able to muster an occasional flash of what in another field would be known as genius. Along with it has the color that made him the biggest thing in international sports on more than one occasion in his reign as the greatest in the world.

He won the U. S. amateur title seven times and teamed up to take the trip all the way out on Long Island to watch him sweat a few drops, again, not that I was ever a tennis fan or ever saw much of Tilden. But I saw enough of both the sport and of the man himself to know, even though he already was faded then, that he must have been by far the finest machine that ever traveled a tennis court.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS LAND

Back in 1928, Babe Ruth was still strong with 54 homers; Jim Bottomley was starring at first for the St. Louis Cardinals; the late Miller Huggins and Bill McKechnie did the master-minding in the world's series for the Yanks and Cards.

It seems just like yesterday, but Outfielder Danny Syracuse who was born that year is taking his first step toward the majors, playing with the Bristol Twins of the Appalachian league.

Dean, who hails from Staten Island, was 16 years old on May 15. He laid claim to being the youngest performer in the minors until a few days ago, when the Reds sent Joe Nuxhall, their 15-year-old hurler to Birmingham of the Southern loop.

Syracuse is a protégé of the New York Giants.

Dean, who hails from Staten Island, was 16 years old on May 15.

Three games were scheduled in the first half of the American Legion Junior League race Tuesday evening, with Dean Park Dodgers continuing their drive for first place by defeating the North Hill Cardinals 7-0 behind the three-hit pitching of Vargo. Sammie for the Cardinals hurled fairly steady ball, allowing only seven hits but they all proved rump producers.

Wolverines took the measure of the Fannins by a score of 9-5 with Badurk hurling good ball, holding Fannins scoreless until the last two frames, when the Fannins scored their five runs. He fanned 11 men.

Dean Park took an early lead against the Cards, scoring five runs in the first three frames to clinch the contest. Triples by Mills and Gentile featured.

Tanner and Pete had the only extra base clouts in the Wolverine-Fannin contest, with Owoc, Jopok and Pander getting two hits apiece.

Cozy Corners took a forfeit game from the Cubs, who were unable to present a full team, in their game scheduled for Washington field.

Were it not for his uncle, old Ben Tilden, who was a landmark at Louisville in the American Association for years, Pitcher Frank Tincup of Seattle in the Pacific Coast loop might still be trying to make the grade as an outfielder.

Frank broke into pro ball with Paducah of the Kitty league in 1939 as a fly-hawk. But Uncle Ben, a great pitcher in his own right, was the Paducah manager and he had different ideas for his nephew.

Manager Ben moved Rookie Frank to the mound and started teaching him the tricks of the trade. The youngster won nine and lost eight his first year.

By 1942, Frank had come along and was the leading pitcher of the Western Association, winning 18 and losing five for Topeka. Last year he split his time between Kansas City and Seattle and is a regular starter for the Rangers this year.

Uncle Ben says the fellow never would have made the grade as an outfielder in Class D, but he's now eating a unicorn as a pitcher.

Cagey folks, these Indians!

He won the singles first in 1920 after two years as runnerup. The lanky, long-armed Philadelphia with the stooped shoulders and the hair-curler turned pro in 1931, hit the world's great tennis spots for the next few years then began to slip. Yet, only about four years ago he played superbly against Don Budge for a set before he wilted and succumbed to the hard-lining of the younger man, who, incidentally some say was just about as good as Tilden.

Brilliant Play

I don't believe that latter. You don't have to be a tennis wizard yourself to see the fine flashes of brilliance even in an aged Tilden. I saw Budge at his best in national championships, in Davis Cup matches and as a professional and during those times heard some say that he could do anything ever shown by Tilden. I still don't believe it.

And, of course, there was no comparison between the two in that thing called color. Budge was a tremendous man in every respect but in appearance and personality was just another tennis player.

Tilden had fire and antics and mannerism: all his own, plus an unforgettable physical getup, and if you saw him once you'd never forget him any more than you would forget a paunchy Babe Ruth would forget a paunchy Jack Dempsey with that awful snarl across his unshaved face.

And they all were of the same breed and era—the Ruths and Dempseys and others of the 1920's—great men who now occasionally go through the motions to help a cause and let the latter day fans get a glimpse of what is left. That alone will make it worthwhile to watch Tilden.

Elks Battle Wind At Sylvan Heights

Marines Lead League With Two Matches On Calendar Run Off, G. Stitzinger Medalist

Battling a stiff wind and cold weather last evening a full-tuna of Elks club golfers were present at the Sylvan Heights course for the second round of matches in the league. The medalist honors in spite of the elements went to George Stitzinger with a 40 cut.

Other low cards last evening were turned in by Ray Watkins 41, Frank Summers 41, Bill Watkins 42. Winners in the blind bogey were Mickey Rohrer and Ben McCann.

With two matches played the standing of the league is as follows: Marines 9-1, Air Corps 8, Seabees 6, Army 4, Navy 4, Coast Guard 1-1. The Marines won 5-1 points last night and lost but a half-point.

The schedule for next Tuesday will be as follows:
Army vs Seabees
Marines vs Air Corps

LAMM PITCHES FOUR-HIT GAME

Hurls I.A.M. To Impressive 9 To 1 Win Over Shenango Pottery At Lee Avenue

Eddie Lamm, on the hill for the I. A. of M. baseball team pitched a masterful four-hit game last evening at Lee Avenue to subdue the Shenango Pottery team in a city league game 9 to 1.

Besides hurling a swell game all the way and fanning eight batters Lamm had three of the hits earned by his club and helped to win his own game. The losing hurler was Gonet with Blair relieving in the latter innings. The Machinists hopped on Gonet for seven runs in the first two innings.

Paluso with two hits led the Pottery at bat, Orlando and Russi had doubles for the only extra-base socks.

Poll Survey Shows Dewey To Be Named

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 21.—A coast-to-coast survey of Republican delegates shows today that Governor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, will be nominated for the presidency on the first ballot at the Chicago GOP convention next week.

Gov. Dewey has a minimum total of 700 votes in the convention. Only 530 is required for a clear majority and nomination.

The poll was taken among Republican convention officials, delegation members, state leaders, members of Congress and national committeemen. Every doubtful vote was given to Gov. John W. Bricker, of Ohio who runs a poor second, or placed in the undecided column.

It is wholly possible for Dewey to get more than 800 votes on the first ballot.

Poll Forecast

The poll showed as of today the following voting on the first ballot: Thomas E. Dewey, of New York; 590 votes.

John W. Bricker, of Ohio; 150 votes.

Harold I. Stassen, of Minnesota; 26 votes.

Simon S. Wells, of Kentucky; 22 votes.

Dwight Griswold, of Nebraska; 6 votes.

Leverett Saltonstall, of Massachusetts; 3 votes.

Douglas MacArthur, of Wisconsin; 3 votes.

Undeclared delegates; 99. Grand total; 1039.

The poll was made without consulting anybody in either the Dewey or Bricker headquarters. There are some disputed totals among the delegations but the confidential declarations of state leaders were accepted over the claims of the rival headquarters.

West Mifflin Will Honor Lieut. Paige

Winner Of Congressional Medal Of Honor Will Get Mother's Good Cooked Meals

PITTSBURGH, June 21.—(INS)—Mrs. Michael Paige, mother of Marine Lieut. Michael Paige, of West Mifflin, Allegheny county's first Congressional Medal of Honor winner in World War II, today planned to cook all her hero son's favorite foods—roast chicken, ginger cakes and nut rolls—when he arrives home Friday.

When word was received that Lieut. Paige, who won the nation's highest honor for stopping a Jap advance single-handed on Guadalcanal, would arrive at McKeesport by train, neighbors and relatives stirred with activity and began hanging signs and banners reading "Welcome home, Mitch, our hero."

The Congressional Medal of Honor winner's traveling by train instead of plane caused cancellation of an elaborate reception scheduled at the county airport.

Upon his arrival, the lieutenant will be met by his wife and mother and will be escorted by West Mifflin police to his home. A formal celebration is scheduled to be held next week on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

State Payrolls Rise Moderately

Slight Decrease In Employment Is Shown For Month Of May By Survey

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—(INS)—Employment in Pennsylvania factories decreased during May, while payrolls rose moderately, the Philadelphia Reserve bank reported today.

Employment figures of 1,250,660 workers for the month represent a two per cent decrease from May, 1943, and four per cent below the wartime peak of last November, the bank stated.

The institution's survey, based on reports received from 2800 Pennsylvania factories, showed payments total more than $55,000,000 a week or six per cent greater than in May, 1943, and close to the highest weekly payment on record.

While the total working hours showed a small increase, the average weekly income of wage earners increased during May to a new high of $48.17, as compared to $46.69 in April and $45.34 a year ago.

Airmail Envelopes Lose Color Lines

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The familiar red, white and blue border on six-cent airmail stamped envelopes is being eliminated to permit an output increase of about 50 per cent, the Post Office Department said today. The six-cent envelope now is being used almost exclusively by the overseas armed forces.

The stamped envelope factory is turning out 40,000,000 of the airmail stamped envelopes a month.

The department said there will be no sale of these envelopes in this country until the demand of the armed forces has been fully satisfied. Regular airmail postage now is eight cents—for letters not traveling to or from overseas troops.
